Silver lining: US turmoil could be good for Asians

By Michelle K. Brown

THE US FINANCIAL CRISIS HAS spawned speculation that it could mark emerging economies like the Philippines as a downturn, but a senior academic from Singapore believes otherwise.

According to Kishore Mahbubani, the dean of the Lee Kuan Yew School of Public Policy, the turmoil in the West could be a source of optimism for Asians.

"Actually, the effect of the crisis in the United States could be the opposite. The crisis could in fact lead to a change in the mindset of foreign investors in favor of emerging economies," he told the business in an interview.

Mahbubani, who visited Manila last week to deliver a talk on economics and public policy at the Asian Development Bank headquarters in the Ortigas Center, is a former ambassador of Singapore to the United Nations and a former president of the UN Security Council.

He is the author of the recently published book "The New Asian Hemisphere," which discusses the rise of Asia as a driver of the world economy together with Western nations.

Mahbubani encouraged Filipinos and other Asians to be positive amid the turmoil in the West.

He said any negative effects on emerging economies could slowly be lessened, where some investors, and that is the long term, investors would see the benefits of doing more business in these economies.

Mahbubani praised China's economic growth.

Hall of remembrance puts a face on martial law martyrs

By TJ Burgoles

THERE ARE ONLY CLOSE-UP portraits lifted from yearbooks and family albums, and yet this gallery contains the official records of some of the countless people who died fighting the Marcos dictatorship.

President Ferdinand Marcos declared martial law 34 years ago today.

In his picture, Emmanuel Lazo of Nueva Visayas sports a thick head of hair and looks like someone in his 20s.

But Lazo's profile offers startling information: As a student of the Central Luzon State University in 1965, he joined the League of Filipino Students, helped march in Manila. He was badly shot in the head on Tala Avenue in Manila on Oct. 21, 1966.

He was 17—the youngest of the 33 young martyrs profiled in the gallery. And Lazo was not alone.

University of the Philippines economics student Dennis Pineda Gonzalez, who worked with Lazo in his home-province of Zamboanga, was shot dead from the family home in February 1972.

His balding-headed body was found days later. Hundreds of people stirred at his funeral. He was 19.

Rescue plan takes markets from panic to euphoria

NEW YORK—THE TWISTS AND TURNS OF A TURBULENT week on Wall Street have made traders dizzy, but analysts are looking for a calmer ride in the coming week as the market digests the latest efforts to battle the financial market firestorm.

The mood has shifted from panic to euphoria as the financial system firms up. But some say the truce in markets shows signs of easing following what the financial industry described as the "number of all bailouts."

The major indexes ended little changed despite the unprecedented volatility.

The blue-chip Dow Jones Industrial Average fell 0.28 percent on the week to 11,268.44 after big rallies Thursday and Friday recouped heavy losses earlier in the week.

The broad-market Standard & Poor's 500 index rose 0.27 percent to 1,255.80 and the technology-heavy Nasdaq composite managed a gain of 0.56 percent to 2,275.90.

"I'm not sure I've ever seen such volatility," said Andy Bennett, head of trading at T. Rowe Price, after one hectic week-and-a-half session.

The historic week came as Wall Street giant Lehman Brothers collapsed after failing to find a buyer and the US government offered an $85-billion-dollar lifeline to insurance giant AIG to stave off a financial market tsunami. Meanwhile, Merrill Lynch made an emergency deal to sell itself

Robin Padilla's girl in Mindanao: Why is there war?

INNOCENT ABROAD "I have never seen such suffering," says Queensie Padilla, 17, who represents her father Robin Padilla in food distributions to orphans.

By Queensie Scarpaga Padilla

Robin's Sister: The mother, 17, is the eldest daughter of actor Robin Padilla and Linda Scarpaga. She came home to Manila in November 2007 after completing high school in Australia, where she lived for eight years with her mother and siblings.

EVERY THIS MONTH I JOINED A RELIEF operation in war-torn areas in Mindanao. It was my initiation to social responsibility.

Living apart: my childhood in Australia, I had yet to be exposed to communities less privileged in terms of livelihood and social benefits for their residents. And after long months of training in acting, music and the musical arts, I felt I had to move on to the next level of my personal development.

It was past noon of Sept. 13 when I, representing my father, Robin Padilla, the current president of the Luningag Supanggano Foundation Inc., boarded a Philippine Airlines flight to Cotabato City.

I was in the company of an uncle, an aunt, a cousin, the foundation's administrator, and our host, Hassan Padillang of the Office on Muslim Affairs.

Our destinations: Pikit in North Cotabato and Davao Pangu and Talayan in Maguindanao.

In Cotabato City, we proceeded to the market to buy the commodities that we were to distribute to families displaced by the fighting and were now staying in evacuation areas.

Parking the covered goods, rice, bread, coffee and sugar took us until the wee hours of the following day. A group of young artists in the city helped to pack the stuff.

Alleged Lehman dummies post bail, deny raps

By Henry T. Trinidad
and Nancy C. Cervantes

PHILADELPHIA—Alleged owners of the bankrupt American investment bank Lehman Brothers have posted bail after claiming they were never sued against them by a Manhattan jury against the bank.

The bank, incorporated in the New York City borough of Queens, filed for Chapter 11 protection in federal court in Sept. 4 by filing a petition for protection under Chapter 11 of the U.S. Bankruptcy Code.

The filing named Michael C. Feldman, chairman and chief executive officer of Lehman, as a defendant in a lawsuit filed by the bank. He said they posted bail before a warrant for their arrest could be issued. And they did so only to get themselves out of the jurisdiction of the court.

Lehman's chairman of the Special Assets Unit, John J. McQuinn, said the bank's chairman had posted the same bail for himself and his wife.

Lehman also filed a Chapter 11 petition in federal court in New York City, claiming that the bank's chairman had posted the same bail for himself and his wife.

The motion also ordered the government to withdraw the indictment against Feldman. The motion also ordered the government to withdraw the indictment against Feldman. The motion also ordered the government to withdraw the indictment against Feldman.

A CALL TO CONGRESS TO PASS THE REPRODUCTIVE HEALTH BILL

We congratulate the House of Representatives for finally tackling the Reproductive Health and Population Development Bill (House Bill 5043) in its plenary session.

Indeed, this is a momentous event. Although long in coming, Congress has finally taken the cudgels for a measure that has long been awaited by the majority of Filipinos. The Pulse Asia surveys, the latest one conducted in March 2007, have shown what the majority has been consistently saying all along¹:

- Nine out of ten Filipinos (92%) consider family planning important.
- Nine out of ten Filipinos (89%) think that government should allocate funds for modern methods of family planning including the pill, condoms, ligation, and vasectomy.
 - The percentage in favor of government funding for modern methods of family planning is particularly high among Roman Catholics (90%).
- Nearly 8 out of 10 Filipinos (76%) say it is important for a politician to include family planning in his/her program of action.
- More Filipinos believe that the church should not participate in the issue of what family planning methods couples should use (44% vs 33%).

These figures show the consistent clamor for reproductive health care, family planning, and population and development services. And this is precisely what the Reproductive Health and Population Development bill seeks to provide.

We therefore call on Congress to enact House Bill 5043—a policy that would enable the people to make informed choices, give them options, and empower them to uplift the quality of their lives.

Pass the Reproductive Health and Population Development Bill!

Ex-PC soldier finds peace in Italy

Narciso Abarintos braved a new life in search of a decent wage

By Marjorie C. Ortiz

WHEN HE FIRST CAME TO ITALY AS AN overseas worker more than a decade ago, Narciso Abarintos was taken aback by the alien culture—particularly the food.

"My first thought was how hard surely one has to find food here," Abarintos, a former Philippine Constabulary soldier, recalled with a laugh. He was eating in the Italian canteen, a common sight on the battlefield.

But the 58-year-old native of Bataan, Pangasinan, who generally ate a dinner he called Arroz, Alago, and Baka (rice, meat, and cow), found it hard to adjust to the Italian food. He was used to the rice, meat, and cow, but the Italian food was different. He was used to the rice, meat, and cow, but the Italian food was different.

A CHINESE BABY cries as it gets treatment for kidney stones brought on by contaminated milk.

Milk poisoning spreads; Singapore bans imports

BEIJING—SINGAPORE BANNED ALL DAIRY IMPORTS FROM CHINA on Friday and the European Union demanded answers from Beijing as the baby formula scandal that has left thousands of infants ill across China spread to liquid milk.

A government food quality watchdog in China said nearly 10 percent of milk and drinking yogurt samples from those areas dairy companies were contaminated with potentially deadly melamine. Poisoned parents have crowded hospitals and demanded refunds since officials said the Baida Group, China's biggest maker of infant milk powder, said last week that babies were sick with kidney stones and complications after drinking some milk powder.

In the latest report, 1,300 children have become ill, 300 have died and 100 are still being treated by doctors.

The role of sick children is overwhelming some doctors, the official Xinhua agency said, quoting a man who was carried away by hospital in his limousine.

Li Chaozhen, whose 9-month-old son has a kidney stone 0.5 centimeter in diameter, rushed to the capital but was also rejected at one pediatric hospital, the report added.

Singapore said on Friday it had banned the import and sale of all milk and dairy products from China after tests found melamine contamination in two brands of Chinese-made milk products.

Beijing has already recalled some milk powder exported by two firms whose products were found to be contaminated, and although it said "there has been no fat in melamine" in those products, many consumers are worried about their children's health.

In Shanghai, Hong Kong recalled dairy products of one Chinese company.

Robert Madsen, director general for health and consumer protection at the European Commission, and the European Union did not import Chinese infant milk powder and there had been no EU reports of those disorders imported Chinese dairy products.

But such foreign consumers watching China again struggle with toxic food and chemical safety and coverage, Madsen said, reports in Beijing he expected as a result of what went wrong.

"We are trying to establish the facts," Madsen said.

"On the government's report, we are also asking questions, and we will have to wait probably about the same time you do."

After a nationwide check, China's General Administration of Quality Supervision, Inspection and Quarantine named two of China's top dairy producers, Baida and Yili, as the main culprits.

Hu Jintao: Deadly milk 'painful lesson'

BEIJING—CHINA'S PRESIDENT HU JINTAO has sharply criticized local officials, state media said on Monday, after a contaminated milk scandal claimed the lives of two babies.

There are "painful lessons" to be drawn from a series of health scares in China, the president reportedly told a Communist Party meeting on Friday, as senior politicians pulled dairy products from their shelves.

"There have been some serious food and food safety accidents this year in certain places which have caused major harm to life and to the well-being of the masses," the People's Daily, the Communist Party newspaper, quoted the Chinese leader as saying.

"These accidents show that some officials have lost a sense of principle, of the public interest, of responsibility, of attention to spiritual suffering," he scolded the officials.

China said this week that milk powder tainted with the chemical melamine, which used to make plastics, had sickened at least 4,200 babies nationwide and killed five over a period of many months.

Melamine was illegally mixed into milk products and has also been found in a variety of dairy products, including yogurts and ice cream.

It was apparently introduced by dairy suppliers to give the appearance of higher protein levels.

"We must draw painful lessons from these serious accidents," Hu said, calling them a "terrible warning."

Can the talk, it's game time

La Salle, Ateneo duel; Tiu guarded

By Jocelyn M. Pags

BY NOW, EVERYTHING THAT COULD POSSIBLY BE SAID about the country's most passionate basketball rivalry has already been said.

The perennial cross-town defending champions La Salle and perennial road trippers Ateneo have filled baskets of suspended disbelief tonight on the heels of their championship victory for the UAAP men's basketball crown.

The anticipation has been building for the single final day. The defending champions versus the title favorite. The Grand Slam quadrilateral coach versus the most decorated college coach moment. The top seed versus the most successful squad of the past decade. Game seven. Ho!

Though, with the result, it's clear the true victory goes to the victors.

Since I took off at the third Ateneo Coliseum, which will be the home of the most anticipated championship series this year, with La Salle and Ateneo hoping to get a headstart at the 10th, watch this.

Ateneo and La Salle again collide. Game 1 will not be an end to the basketball rivalry as other rivalry matches up for games. Game 1 will have its significance.

Remember when all that talk, the only thing missing for Ateneo coach Nestor Tiu and La Salle coach Benjie Paras is that their teams take a step closer to the title.

"Our goal is not completed yet," said Tiu after his team's victory in the championship series with a 61-51 record. "We are going back to the beginning of the year to win the championship. Whatever it takes, we'll get it done."

But if there is one team that has been many times over here to get a big victory game done, it's definitely the school, who have half of the league's championships in the last 10 years.

"It is such a big final of championship, competing for the title," said Paras.

"I think we're right on track. The team is doing very well. But based on its performance in playing in the Finals, it will likely be a challenge."

Other than all the players to win the championship. Down the road, it's the point and execution that will help in the championship.

Bodyguards

On the eve of the first game, defense and offense continued to make it a tight race in the final of Ateneo vs. La Salle. The two opponents have bodyguards to look after the safety of their own, a well-dressed and well-trained team.

The defense, a team close to the front end, was needed after several misidentified people especially, and in approach. This is a very serious situation.

The school did not elaborate on who the people were and what they wanted, but said they would handle the matter. The school did not want a repeat of the Marikina case.

However, a student with the HJL (Honor) team, a student who was shot by a lone gunman in a case widely believed to have been a game-day incident.

The school says the student was shot with a 7.62mm, which is the same caliber as the 7.62mm caliber used in the Marikina case.

But of course, both schools have their private bodyguards. In many Ateneo-La Salle games.

"The students will play the role of a team in everything about their championship," said Paras. "We always consider La Salle as one of the best conditioned teams in the league."

Paras, on the other hand, stated that the Ateneo are looking for a rough game to get a headstart in the Finals.

Adding it to the Finals already with La Salle, it's playing against the number one team will be a harder job for us," said Paras. "If you're going to look at Ateneo's lineup, they're a deep and complete team."

Adding the 2009-2010 season of their basketball schedule, which is the Ateneo-La Salle, La Salle, La Salle, and La Salle. The Ateneo-La Salle, La Salle, La Salle, and La Salle.

Ateneo-La Salle (top) and Ateneo-La Salle (bottom) are the two teams that will play each other for the title.

When success tastes just as

By Carrie Salazar in Manila

WHAT WAS SUNDAY AS a hobby by serving homemade cakes has now blossomed into a highly successful enterprise, where many cakes, delicious pastries and delicious meals have practically become an integral part of every Filipino celebration.

Joining 29 this year, Red Ribbon Baking Inc. now has 280 branches nationwide—the latest of which just opened in Zamboanga City—and 25 in the United States. And as the sun it is going, Red Ribbon stands a good chance of becoming a rival to the No. 1 dot in terms of reach network to be seen.

Since the Adeline Group took over Red Ribbon—with about 150 branches there—down to London, Dubai and New Orleans, in 2005, the bakery's network has grown by an average of 25 branches a year.

Red Ribbon president Joseph C. Tumbong, expects faster growth in the coming years, given the Adeline Group's all-out support for the bakery.

Rising and rising

The job of keeping Red Ribbon's growth momentum falls to the hands of Tumbong, who joined the bakery only last April from start firm Adeline Food Corp., and marketing director Albert Caramba, also senior to Red Ribbon.

Both know that the job on hand calls for much more than just putting up new branches in record time. They know they have to continue reinventing Red Ribbon to keep up with the changing times and requirements of the market, and to stay in good shape for the right competition in the Philippine baking industry. This, however, needs to be done without losing the Red Ribbon charm that has captured the hearts of many Filipinos for many years now.

Taste, look and feel

To keep its loyal customers and win new ones, Red Ribbon knows nothing to change when it comes to its products and services. "We make sure our products are and look good, and are affordable," says Caramba.

In product line and continuously, it shows out new cakes, pastries and meals that appeal to both the eyes and the palate, and are easy on the pocket. To date, Red Ribbon's Cakes by Design Centers have more than 300 specialty cakes for all sorts of occasions: one can think of—birthdays, graduations, marriage proposals, weddings, anniversaries. These are one of the traditional cakes and pastries Red Ribbon is known, and which are readily available in many branches of the bakery.

One can now find and get from Red Ribbon the types of cakes that, in the past, can only be bought from specialty or independent bakeries in some affordable prices and with added service. In short, photo cakes which give away light-to cakes used to be ordered days ahead from specialty bakeries. There are cakes, as well as cakes originally designed by the bakers.

Innovations

Red Ribbon also has "total look" cakes carrying themes of the holiday where a branch is visited, such as Christmas themes.

cakes in the book. It also includes and adapts to the preferences of the people in the areas it serves.

For instance, certain branches in the United States have local Latino customers, which Caramba says, is a fast growing market for Red Ribbon branches in the United States. In these areas, specialty cakes and pastries that cater to particular customers must, such as the Tres Leches, the and mango cakes.

Visual identity

Taking a step ahead, Red Ribbon took into its fold one of the country's top fashion designers—Frederick Perilla and Rags Lovers—to design beautiful wedding cakes that also inspiration from the latest trends in the wedding fashion world. The two came up with a wide array of wedding cakes lineup—from the classic to the modern wedding to the elegant yet elegant types for simple weddings.

The magic immediately unfolds when the day at Hong Kong Disneyland begins. With captivating Disney characters, fabulous surprises, thrilling rides and unforgettable performances, the day won't end until the nighttime falls in the land where dreams become reality.

Disney on Parade

Floors, musicians, dancers and our beloved Disney Characters in a magical procession that brings the streets of Main Street,

U.S.A. to life will definitely put a smile on everyone's face. This wondrous procession features well-loved Disney Characters from such classics as "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" to today's family favorites.

Jungle River Cruise

This classic river voyage of adventure lets the cruisers leave mysterious jungles with surprises around every bend in the river including an epic battle of fire and water. Wild beasts such as hippos, elephants, cobras and

WHERE FUN, FEAR & LAUGHTER RESIDE

This Halloween, the darkness once again takes over Disneyland. Courage is put to the test with all new thrilling attractions including the Demon Jungle, Glow-In-The-Park Parade, Space Mountain - Ghost Galaxy & more. All the darkness, all the fun, all the fun. All at Hong Kong Disneyland.

Demon Jungle

Explorers built their outpost on a burial ground, awakening the demons who possessed everything and everyone inside. Lost for years, the outpost has now been found in the depths of Adventureland, ready to be explored by those who dare. Getting into the jungle is one thing. Getting out is another matter.

Glow-In-The-Park Parade

Once a year when darkness prevails, this spooky sensation glows in the dark and rocks the Park. Visitors get to join Jack Skellington and his creepy Pumpkin Men and behold the horror of Dr. Finkelstein's Lab. Scream with the Disney Villains and gasp at the shocking Red Devils with their spine-chilling aerobatics. This year a whole new Ghostly Pirate Ship will create a roasting finale. Visitors should be on the look out as these ghostly mates share their pirate treasure.

Space Mountain - Ghost Galaxy

The darkness of the outer regions of an alternate Universe is explored in this fast and furious roller-coaster. Space Mountain has been transformed with a hauntingly eerie sound track, ghostly manifestations and scary apparitions which lurk around unsuspecting twins and turns to make your heart race and your skin crawl. Ghost Galaxy is not a journey for the faint-hearted!

Haunted Buffet & Halloween Special Merchandise

Warm your bones with some cranberry food. There will be a Haunted Buffet at the Enchanted Garden, Halloween menu at River View Cafe and Special drinks at Corner Cafe. At the Mad as House Bakers you'll find scary sweet treats that are simple to die for. And you can also grab some of our all-time souveniers. There's over 160 Mickey, Jack Skellington and Winnie the Pooh themed goodies such as plushies, pins, key chains, T-shirts, stationeries, candles and more. Don't forget to get yourself a spooky headband to enhance your costume.

So what are you waiting for? Experience a wonderful and thrilling vacation with your loved ones.

Jim Paredes shows some 'Skin'

By Rebecca C. Burgess

FOR MOST PEOPLE, being a musician composer, Jim Paredes has been into photography of nature and people. In "Skin & Bones" (ISBN 0-978-1-888888-1-1), however, he's still in recording the sensuality of the female body in a new way.

"Skin," his first exhibit of nude to his legs. It's on Oct. 2 at the Museum of Contemporary Art, 1500 Broadway, depicts the body in a new way.

The 39 male-and-white photographs range from 10 to 20 in size.

"I developed the project around female nude. One model is a nude woman in a white dress. I used really the nude model."

Some of the photos were taken in a hotel. One model is a nude woman in a white dress. I used really the nude model."

The nude model, who is showing her body in a white dress, is a nude woman in a white dress. I used really the nude model."

For Paredes, support with his subject is very important. "I don't want to be uncomfortable before the camera," he says. "I want to be comfortable before the camera."

Paredes' passion for nude photography started right after he got into the photography business. "I don't want to be uncomfortable before the camera," he says. "I want to be comfortable before the camera."

It gives the chance, Paredes says, of photographing. "I don't want to be uncomfortable before the camera," he says. "I want to be comfortable before the camera."

The singer-composer bares a different side to him—and some sexy curves

Larry's last legacy: a farm spa in the north

By Loren A. Villalba

FOOD CONNOISSEURS LARRY J. Cruz was cooking up a new menu on the farm living in the north.

So as if even from the great beyond, LJC has managed to make his vision of a haven on the slopes of Mount Arayat come true—one that captures the essence of Filipino heritage and community. The almost passing word outside ago did not stop the project that had been launched from Larry's makeshift life site.

This September, Larry Cruz would have celebrated his birthday, on his 47th day, with a big party. His daughter, Larissa Cruz Rodan, lady to his GC Group of Restaurants, and his former partners Mike and Gerry Farrell of

MOUNTAIN Spa Village on the farm (below) coupled to spend early morning in the shade of the hills. (LARRY CRUZ)

Mountain Spa Village would see that the birthday tradition continues, maybe not in the grand manner Larry's presence as exemplified, but magnanimously to welcome the birth of his new baby: Alan's Farm and Mountain Spa Village in Baguio.

In the urban city where he resided for over 20 years, Larry was a busy larger than life. In later years he would return to this country home to relax and to give his young boy a place he said to be an inheritance he had to give his older children, again to watch them grow up. But his friends did not think he was aware that he was sick and he was hospitalized for bleeding stomach cancer last year.

Like his father, painter master after Agapito Cruz, after whom Larry named Alan's Farm, Larry had the passion for food, believing that "tasting in the steps" anyone eating's orders was still more certainly coming right. (Larry discovered the spot where Alan's Farm is now by serendipity, it came on the day he went back to Baguio to watch his father's ashes, after from Manila.)

Of his life, Larry was beyond times ago, while understanding that years of vision, but he did not let him know that, Larry never, "The good life had to pass."

So, he thought—accepting—that he has vision, a testimony of the good life would pay the price to look, when he still had one, his dream to build. He was in the habit of building a complete testament for his people in the shape of the mountain. He believed it was one that would integrate the good food, good company, and good time with managed-upon-upon. Alan's farm was his testament. His, his personal vision of the world. That he would let others to enter that world as an indication of his wanting to live a legacy.

MTSV is open in a cozy, rustic setting surrounded by beautiful Pinatubo Forest.

His longtime friend, architect and painter Ricardo Cruz had built for him a country house in his home and old world with two unique but plenty of space to take in his account, and a room to welcome the world from the view of his. At night, the house was open to the natural sound of his home as a living design the modern guests.

Larry wanted his vision in his new vision. There he did not have the business, to keep the family in the past.

Calley and Mike spoke about having to carry about how he would house Kapampangan and Filipino culture through the food, local arts and culture of their home, and how he would create a special Filipino destination that people would come from after to see.

Larry kept a legacy house, which he would build in Alan's farm, and where he would give his legacy and testament. Daughter Larissa, who has taken over the GC business, will continue that vision.

His legacy house caught everyone by surprise. Calley says that Larry wanted to build and leave a mark behind, with an intention that he was leading the house again, saying, "The last time I was in the GC, looking forward to opening his new business."

THE LATE GREENEY envisioning guests in the restaurant under Alan's Farm as a legacy to his children. He wanted Kapampangan culture in the GC tradition with his people to share from the region's indigenous products.

When an integrated Alan's Farm and Mountain Spa Village fully opens on the GC in his people, it will be his legacy to his people.

Larry would have been proud with how he transformed a piece of the land into a spa village, with his little cottages, garden and garden perfectly to be his testament.

Indigenous culture from the people of the Kapampangan has been revealed in the big building pool, air-conditioned for overnight or day-long accommodations.

The spa has received traditional Kapampangan music in its music, from the people of the Kapampangan culture to the people of the Kapampangan culture.

The building provides a convergence of good living. Larry realized his vision of a country life, good old Kapampangan cuisine and cures—and a blissful massage.
